PREFACE

This report presents statistics on the number of inhabitants of the State, its counties and minor civil divisions (townships, etc.). In addition, separate figures are also presented for urban places, wards of cities of 5,000 or more, and other areas of the State. These data are based upon tabulations from the Seventeenth Decennial Census of the population of the United States, its Territories, and possessions conducted as of April 1, 1950. Provision for the Seventeenth Decennial Census was made in the act providing for the Fifteenth and subsequent decennial censuses which was approved on June 18, 1929.

The major portion of the information compiled from the Census of Population of 1950 will appear in Volume I, Number of Inhabitants, and in Volume II, Characteristics of the Population. This report is a preprint of Chapter 11 (Georgia) of Volume I, which is to present, in a single publication, statistics on the number of inhabitants for each State.

The materials presented here will also appear as Chapter A of Part 11 (Georgia) of Volume II. Volume II will comprise a series of separately published parts, one for each State and a summary for the United States. The use of separate parts makes the basic materials on characteristics of the population for a given State available to the public in a single publication. Within the part for a State, Chapter A will recapitulate the statistics on the number and distribution of the population within a State; Chapter B will present statistics on the general characteristics of the population of the various political subdivisions of the State, such as counties, incorporated places, and the like; and Chapter C will present data on the detailed characteristics of the population of the larger areas within the State, such as cities of 100,000 inhabitants or more and standard metropolitan areas.

The materials presented here were prepared under the supervision of Howard G. Brunsman, Chief, Population and Housing Division, and Dr. Henry S. Shryock, Jr., Assistant Chief for Population Statistics, by Dr. Henry D. Sheldon, Chief, Demographic Statistics Section, and Charles P. Brinkman, Chief, Population Distribution Unit; the compilation of the statistics was under the direction of Robert B. Voight, Assistant Chief for Operations. The collection of the information on which these statistics are based was under the supervision of Lowell T. Galt, Chief, Field Division. The geographic work, including the delineation of special types of urban territory and the preparation of maps, was under the supervision of Clarence E. Batschelet, Chief, Geography Division.

Housing statistics for census tracts are to be included in the Population reports on census tracts.

GEORGIA

Number of Inhabitants

The State.—Georgia was one of the Thirteen Original States. At the close of the Revolution, it included territory extending westward to the Mississippi River, constituting most of the area now in Alabama and Mississippi. In 1798 part of this area was organized as the Territory of Mississippi. In 1802 Georgia ceded to the United States all its claims to the region west of its present western boundary and acquired a small strip of land along its northern boundary. These changes left the State with its present boundaries. Its population on April 1, 1950, according to the Seventeenth Census, was 3,444,578. The State has a land area of 58,483 square miles. In 1950 there was an average of 58.9 inhabitants per square mile as compared with an average of 53.4 in 1940. Among the States, Georgia ranked thirteenth in population and twentieth in land area.

In 1790, the year of the first Federal census, Georgia had a population of 82,548 (table 1). In 1950, 160 years later, the population was nearly 42 times as large. From 1790 to 1840 the decennial rates of increase for Georgia exceeded those for the Nation as a whole; thereafter the rates for the State have been consistently below those for the Nation. In the twentieth century the intercensal rates of growth ranged from 0.4 percent between 1920 and 1930 to 17.7 percent between 1900 and 1910. The numerical increase of 392,790 for the decade 1900 to 1910 was the largest in the history of the State. The increase of 320,855 between 1940 and 1950 represented a gain of 10.3 percent over the 3,123,723 persons enumerated in 1940.

Usual place of residence.—According to usual Census practice, which dates back to 1790, each person enumerated in the 1950 Census was counted as an inhabitant of his usual place of residence or usual place of abode, which is generally construed to mean the place where he lives and sleeps most of the time. This place is not necessarily the same as his legal residence, voting residence, or domicile, although, in the vast majority of cases, these different bases of classification would be identical.

In the application of this rule, persons were not always counted as residents of the places in which they happened to be found by the census enumerators. Persons in places where guests usually pay for quarters (hotels, etc.) were enumerated on the night of April 11, and those whose usual place of residence was elsewhere were allocated to their homes. Visitors found staying in private homes, however, were not ordinarily interviewed there. Information on persons away from their usual place of residence was obtained from other members of their families, landlords, etc. If an entire family was expected to be away during the whole period of the enumeration, information on it was obtained from neighbors. A matching process was used to eliminate duplicate reports for persons who reported for themselves while away and were also reported by their families at home.

Persons in the armed forces quartered on military installations were enumerated as residents of the States, counties, and minor civil divisions in which their installations were located. Members of their families were enumerated where they actually resided. In the 1950 Census, college students living away from home were considered residents of the communities in which they were residing while attending college, rather than as persons temporarily absent from their parental homes as was the practice in 1940. In 1950 the crews of vessels of the American Merchant Marine in harbors of the United States were counted as part of the population of the ports in which their vessels were berthed on April 1, 1950. In 1940 such persons were treated as part of the population of the port from which the vessel operated. Inmates of institutions, who ordinarily live there for long periods of time, were counted as inhabitants of the place in which the institution was located; whereas patients in general hospitals, who ordinarily have short stays, were counted at, or allocated to, their homes. All persons without a usual place of residence were counted where they were enumerated.

Urban and rural population.—The 1950 urban population of Georgia comprised 1,559,447 persons, or 45.3 percent of the population of the State (table 1). The urban population was living in the 106 urban places in the State and in other territory included in the urban-fringe areas of 3 urbanized areas entirely within the State and the Georgia parts of 3 urbanized areas partly within the State. Almost three-fifths of the urban population was living in the urbanized areas (table 2).

The rural population of Georgia comprised 1,885,131 persons, or 54.7 percent of the population of the State (table 1). Of the rural population, 168,784, or 9.0 percent, were living in the 89 incorporated and the 21 unincorporated places of 1,000 to 2,500 inhabitants (table 2).

Urban definition.—Under the urban definition established for use in the 1950 Census, the urban population comprises all persons living in (a) places of 2,500 inhabitants or more incorporated as cities, boroughs, towns,¹ and villages; (b) the densely settled urban fringe, including both incorporated and unincorporated areas, around cities of 50,000 or more; and (c) unincorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more outside any urban fringe. The remaining population is classified as rural. According to the urban definition used in previous censuses, the urban population comprises all persons living in incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more and areas (usually minor civil divisions) classified as urban under special rules relating to population size and density.

In both definitions, the most important component of the urban territory is the group of incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more. A definition of urban territory restricted to such places, however, would exclude a number of equally large and densely settled places, merely because they were not incorporated places. Under the old definition, an effort was made to avoid some of the more obvious omissions by the inclusion of the places urban under special rules. Even with these rules, however, many large and closely built-up places were excluded from the urban territory. To improve the situation in the 1950 Census, the Bureau of the Census set up, in advance of enumeration, boundaries for urban-fringe areas around cities of 50,000 or more and for unincorporated places outside urban fringes. All the population residing in urban-fringe areas and in unincorporated places of 2,500 or more is classified as urban according to the 1950 definition. (Of course, the incorporated places of 2,500 or more are urban in their own right.) Consequently, the special rules of the old definition are no longer necessary.

According to the new urban definition, the 1950 urban population of Georgia consisted of the following components: (1) The 1,359,775 inhabitants of the 100 incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more; (2) the 32,334 inhabitants of the 6 specially delineated unincorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more; and (3) 167,338 persons living in other territory included in the urban-fringe areas of the Atlanta, Macon, and Savannah Urbanized Areas and in the Georgia parts of the urban-fringe areas of the Augusta, Columbus, and Chattanooga, Tenn., Urbanized Areas. Under the old urban definition, district 1511, Center Hill, in Fulton County, was classified as urban under special rule. The urban population under the old definition consisted of the 1,359,775 persons living in the incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more and the 22,093 persons living in district 1511. According to the new urban definition, 17,460 of the inhabitants of district 1511 were classified as urban because they were living in the urban fringe of Atlanta and the remaining 4,633 were included in the rural population. On the other hand, the 32,334 inhabitants of the six specially delineated unincorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more and 149,878 of the persons in other territory in the urban-fringe areas were included in the rural population under the old definition. The net gain in the urban population of Georgia which resulted from the change in definition therefore was 177,579.

Although the Bureau of the Census has employed other definitions in the course of its history, the statistics on the population by urban and rural residence for the years 1790 to 1940 are shown in accordance with the 1940 definition. The 1950 statistics are shown in accordance with both the new and old definitions.

Trends of urban and rural population.—Trends in the urban and rural population can be examined only on the basis of the old definition. On this basis, the urban population of Georgia quadrupled between 1900 to 1950, rising from 346,382 to 1,381,868 (table 1). The largest numerical increase of the five decades was experienced between 1940 to 1950, whereas the largest percentage increase occurred between 1900 and 1910. The increase of 308,060 in the urban population for the period 1940 to 1950 accounted for well over nine-tenths of the population gain for the State and represented an increase of 28.7 percent over the 1940 urban population of 1,073,808. All 23 cities of 10,000 inhabitants or more in the State shared in the increase in the urban population in the decade 1940 to 1950 (table 4). The rates of increase in these cities ranged from 5.7 percent for Griffin to 138.7 percent for Marietta. The two cities of 50,000 or more in the State in 1900 then accounted for 6.5 percent of the population of the State; by 1950 nearly one-fifth of the population of the State was living in the five cities of this size (table 3). The proportion of the population of Georgia living in urban territory rose from 15.6 percent in 1900 to 40.1 percent in 1950.

The rural population of Georgia increased from 1,869,949 in 1900 to 2,062,710 in 1950 (table 1). The decennial rates of change ranged from a loss of 7.1 percent for the decade 1920 to 1930 to an increase of 10.7 for the decade 1900 to 1910. The numerical increase of 12,795 between 1940 and 1950 represented a gain of 0.6 percent over the 2,049,915 persons living in rural territory in 1940. The proportion of the population of the State classified as rural declined steadily from 84.4 to 59.9 percent between 1900 and 1950.

Counties.—The 159 counties in Georgia ranged in size from Echols with a population of 2,494 to Fulton with a population of 473,572. Between 1940 and 1950, 61 counties in the State increased in population as against 99 in the previous decade. Of the counties which gained population between 1940 and 1950, 54 had had increases in the previous decade also. The most rapid rate of increase was experienced in Clayton County, which gained at the rate of 96.2 percent. As in the previous decade, the largest numerical increase was recorded for Fulton County, which had a gain of 80,686, or one-fourth of the gain for the entire State. Six additional counties—Bibb, Chatham, Cobb, De Kalb, Muscogee, and Richmond—had increases in excess of 20,000. The combined gain of these seven counties accounted for nearly nine-tenths of the gain for the State.

Minor civil divisions.—To the primary political divisions into which counties are divided, the Bureau of the Census applies the general term "minor civil divisions." The minor civil divisions in Georgia are the militia districts, except for the city of Atlanta, which is independent of any militia district organization and is presented as a minor civil division in each of the two counties in which it is located. The incorporated cities, towns, and villages form subdivisions of the minor civil divisions in which they are located.

Table 6 shows statistics on the population for each county by minor civil divisions for the last three censuses. The population of each incorporated place and unincorporated place is shown in italics under the population of the militia district in which it is located. Unincorporated places are designated by "uninc." When a place lies within two or more districts, the population of the several parts is shown in table 6 under the appropriate districts, and each part is designated by "part." Figures on the total population of such places are given in table 7. Changes between the 1940 Census and the 1950 Census in the boundaries of areas listed are shown in notes to table 6. For changes in boundaries prior to the 1940 Census, see reports of the Sixteenth Census (1940), Population, Vol. I, pp. 244-254, and reports of earlier censuses.

Incorporated and unincorporated places.—In 1950 there were 584 places in Georgia incorporated as cities, towns, or villages and 27 unincorporated places of 1,000 inhabitants or more. The 484 incorporated places of fewer than 2,500 inhabitants accounted for 284,217 of the 1,643,992 persons living in incorporated places. Of the 62,965 persons in unincorporated places, 30,631 were in the 21 places of fewer than 2,500 inhabitants. The incorporated places ranged in size from Mountain Park city with a population of 15 to Atlanta city with a population of 331,314 (table 7).

Political units recognized as incorporated places in the 1950 Census are those which are incorporated as cities, boroughs, towns, and villages, with the exception that towns are not recognized as incorporated places in the New England States, New York, and Wisconsin.

The Bureau of the Census has delineated boundaries for the thickly settled urban fringe around cities of 50,000 or more and has also delineated boundaries for unincorporated places of 1,000 or more which are densely settled population centers without corporate limits. Although there are unincorporated places within the urban fringe, it was not feasible to establish boundaries for such places and therefore they are not identified as separate places.

The count of urban places in the 1950 Census comprises all incorporated places of 2,500 or more regardless of location and unincorporated places of 2,500 or more which are located outside the urban-fringe areas. Incorporated places of less than 2,500 which lie in the urban fringe are not recognized as urban places.

Urbanized areas.—There were three urbanized areas entirely within Georgia and three partly within the State. There were 729,582 persons living in the three areas entirely within the State—the Atlanta, Macon, and Savannah Urbanized Areas—and 189,156 in the Georgia parts of the Augusta, Columbus, and Chattanooga, Tenn., Urbanized Areas. Of the 918,738 persons in the State in urbanized areas, 672,323 were in the five central cities in the State—Atlanta, Augusta, Columbus, Macon, and Savannah—and 246,415 were in the urban-fringe areas. The urban-fringe areas had 86,551 persons living in 14 incorporated places and 159,864 in the unincorporated parts (tables 2 and 9).

Each urbanized area contains at least one city with 50,000 inhabitants or more in 1940 or according to a special census taken since 1940, and some urbanized areas contain two or more cities of 50,000. Each urbanized area also includes the surrounding closely settled incorporated places and unincorporated areas that meet the criteria listed in the section below on "Urban fringe." Thus, the territory of an urbanized area may be classified into incorporated parts and unincorporated parts. (See urbanized area maps.)

An urbanized area also may be divided into central city or cities and urban fringe as defined below.

Central cities.—Although an urbanized area may contain more than one city of 50,000 or more, not all cities of this size are necessarily central cities. The largest city of an area is always a central city. In addition, the second and third most populous cities in the area may qualify as central cities provided they have a population of at least one-third of that of the largest city in the area and a minimum of 25,000 inhabitants. The names of the individual urbanized areas indicate the central cities of the areas.

Urban fringe.—The urban fringe includes that part of the urbanized area which is outside the central city or cities. The following types of areas are embraced if they are contiguous to the central city or cities or if they are contiguous to any area already included in the urban fringe:

1. Incorporated places with 2,500 inhabitants or more in 1940 or at a subsequent special census conducted prior to 1950.

2. Incorporated places with fewer than 2,500 inhabitants containing an area with a concentration of 100 dwelling units or more with a density in this concentration of 500 units or more per square mile. This density represents approximately 2,000 persons per square mile and normally is the minimum found associated with a closely-spaced street pattern.

3. Unincorporated territory with at least 500 dwelling units per square mile.

4. Territory devoted to commercial, industrial, transportation, recreational, and other purposes functionally related to the central city.

Also included are outlying noncontiguous areas with the required dwelling unit density located within $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles of the main contiguous urbanized part, measured along the shortest connecting highway, and other outlying areas within one-half mile of such noncontiguous areas which meet the minimum residential density rule.

¹ According to the new urban definition, the urban population comprises persons residing in urban territory but not necessarily in an urban place, which is defined as an incorporated place of 2,500 or more, or an unincorporated place of 2,500 or more located outside an urbanized area. Under the old definition, incorporated places of 2,500 or more and places urban under special rule are classified as urban places.

² Includes 167,338 persons in urban territory outside of urban places.

³ Includes population of areas now in Alabama and Mississippi.

⁴ No population returned for that part of Georgia now in Alabama and Mississippi.

Table 6.—POPULATION OF COUNTIES BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1930 TO 1950

"Uninc." designates an unincorporated place. "Districts" shown here represent militia districts. Minor civil division figures for 1940 and 1930 do not necessarily add to county totals. Figures for 1910 and 1930 not available for unincorporated places and places incorporated since April 1, 1910. Boundary changes between 1940 and 1950 given in footnotes; for changes between 1930 and 1940, see reports of 16th Census (1910), Population, Vol. I, pp. 244-254. Total population of a place located within 2 or more counties or minor civil divisions appears in table 7]

URBANIZED AREA MAPS

The five urbanized areas having their central cities in Georgia, for which statistics are shown in table 9, are depicted in the following maps. The shaded areas, in combination, comprise the urbanized areas. To assist in locating the exact external boundaries of the areas, each boundary feature (street segment, political boundary, or other) has been assigned a number. The boundary segments thus numbered are shown on the map and the features to which they apply are presented in the following key.
